IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY of my son, Donald Wayne Pugh, who departed this life one year ago, October 31, 1970.

Death awaits each of us regardless of our wealth or position. It does not always wait for the gray locks of age to crown our head or for us to achieve our lifetime goals. Christians find comfort in the belief that death is only a door to an eternal home much more wonderful than life on earth. It is in this belief that I find my source of comfort. However, I find it hard to completely console myself. With time and prayer we can come to accept death, when we realize that God knows what's best for each of us. We were brought into this world in love and God takes us away in this same love. However, I feel that death awaited my son, not through the hands of God but through the hands of a murderer. It is because of this I cannot rest. Not knowing why anyone could take the life of someone so young will follow me until death takes me home. I only hope that it will be God's decision to take me and not that of a ruthless murderer. In the meantime I will try to console myself in the hope that some day his murderer will wake up and realize the pain and heartache experienced by those that loved Donald.

Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Brother and Sisters. 10-28-1p

IN MEMORY Of Mrs. Ollie B. Martin who passed away one year ago October 31, 1970.

No morning dawns, no night returns
But what we think of you.
Those left behind are very dear,
But none replaces you.
Your memory to us is a keepsake
With which we will never part.

Though God has you in his keeping,
We will always have you in our hearts.
Beyond life's golden sunset,
Lies a city bright and fair,
In the land of God's tomorrow,
We hope to meet you there.
Sadly missed by husband and children and grandchildren. 10-28-1p

IN LOVING MEMORY of my husband, T. Randolph Gilbert, who departed this life, October 30, 1965.

I miss you in the morning,
When memories are new,
I miss you in the noontide,
And the things you used to do.
I miss you in the evening,
When shadows slowly fall,
But at night when prayers are lifted up,
I miss you most of all.

Sadly missed by his wife, Katie 10-28-1t

Democracy In Action At AIS

Appomattox Intermediate School held an assembly Tuesday to introduce the student council presidential candidates to the student body. Students heard the campaign speeches of each of the six presidential candidates just prior to the primary election held immediately after the assembly. The candidates, from left to right, are Allen Austin, Stephanie Martin, Debbie Rush, (standing), David Marshall, Patty White, and Marvin Watson. Campaign platforms included such ideas as more student involvement in school activities, interracial cooperation, more student voice in school policies, and better student-teacher relations. We at Appomattox Intermediate School sincerely hope that the SCA will become an active organization in our school. AIS will hold SCA elections on November 1st, giving the students a chance to experience a democratic government in action.

Second Annual Arts & Craft Fair Coming To Fine Arts Center

Potters cheerily spinning wet clay into earthenware; painters splashing bright colors onto canvas; enamelists incubating works of art in their kilns; weavers busily creating textured treasures on their looms. The Lynchburg Fine Arts Center will be buzzing with exciting, interesting activities when the annual Virginia Arts and Handcrafts Fair returns Nov. 4.

Last year's Fair was well-received, not only by those who attended, but by the craftsmen themselves; and plans for this year's event indicate that a much wider range of arts and crafts will be displayed by participants from all around the state. Almost every medium will be represented, including pottery, stamped and stained glass, metal sculpture, silver jewelry, copper enameling, painting, weaving, rug hooking, eggshell heirlooms, handpainted boutique items, hand-blocked linens, creations in felt, leather work, handmade dulcimers, guitars and autoharps, in addition, the songs of wandering minstrels will enhance the fascination and festivity of this year's Fair.

Of special interest is the fact that all items displayed will be for sale, thus affording the general public an opportunity to acquire handmade, original works of art, either for themselves or as special Christmas gifts. Planners of the Fair also point out that the event will be as informal as it is informative, with all artists and craftsmen heartily encouraging questions and discussions regarding their work.

The second annual Virginia Arts and Handcrafts Fair will open with a special preview showing for Art Center Members Thursday evening, November 4th, from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

AH YOUTH!!

The National Transportation Safety Board reports a steady increase in the already extremely disproportionate involvement of young drivers in fatal crashes. More than 31 percent of the Nation's 56,400 traffic deaths last year were in the 15-24 age group. This is equal to 7,400 more deaths than if their rate had been the same as over-24 drivers. Drivers in the 15-24 group represent 21 percent of the driving population, yet they were the drivers in 34 percent of all fatal crashes. The Board reported alcohol as a heavy factor.

The Fair will be open to the public Fairday and Saturday, Nov. 5 and 6. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and again from 7 to 9:30 p.m. both days.

Abbitt Endorses Anderson

Delegate Howard P. Anderson, of Halifax, recieved a ringing endorsement in his bid for the State Senate tonight from Representative Watkins M. Abbitt (D-Va.)

In a strongly-worded speech, the Fourth District Congressman, who would be one of Anderson's constituents in the Eighteenth Senatorial District, praised the candidate's qualifications and cautioned voters against electing his independent opponent. Abbitt asserted that support for Anderson "will assure us of effective representation in Richmond at a time when this is vital to the interests of Virginia and its people." Warning against the election of an independent, the former State Democratic Chairman declared, "This is no time for us to have a voice of inexperience to represent us in the legislative halls in Richmond."

He declared that Anderson's experience in business and farming, as well as his long legislative service "make him eminently qualified" for the State Senate. Praising Anderson's "integrity and forthrightness", Abbitt said, "He has been tried and tested and measured up to his responsibilities." Anderson's 14 years in the House of Delegates, Abbitt said, "have given him great knowledge of Virginia government and the needs of the people of Southside and Central Virginia and brought him high esteem among his colleagues."

Speaking at a rally of Anderson supporters, Abbitt emphasized the importance of membership in the Democratic Caucus, where many of the key issues are informally decided. "If an independent were elected more than a hundred thousand people in the Eighteenth Senatorial District, our district, would have no effective voice in the councils of the Senate. We would have no voice in the Democratic Caucus where the many vital decisions are made . . . " He cited Anderson's long experience in the House of Delegates and asserted that this would be an asset in securing important committee assignments in the Senate. "Howard Anderson will take his place in the Senate as a veteran legislator — not as one new at the job and placed in the back row among those who do not understand what is going on," Abbitt said.

The Congressman, whose home is in Appomattox, hit hard on the issue of experience in the State Senate contest. Citing the fact that judges and other important officials are selected by the Democratic caucus, Abbitt pointed out that "an independent', were he there, would have no voice, would not be admitted to the caucus, and we would have without a voice in the selection of the person who would preside over us. We would be helpless and at the mercy of the senators from other areas."

The Congressman drew a contrast between the Eighteenth Senatorial District race and last year's independent candidacy of Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr. "It is simple, Senator Byrdhad been in the Senate of the United States for a number of years. He announced his candidacy for re-election as an Independent Democrat and was assured by the Democratic leaders that if elected he would be permitted to stay in the caucus and keep his important committee assignments. Had he been a new man, he could not have attended the caucus nor would he have had any important committee assignments. I assure you that a new independent will not be permitted to even attend the caucus; and, with no party affiliation, would get almost no committee assignments and would have no voice in the inner sanctum where the actual vital decisions are made. I cannot believe that the people of our Senatorial District, the people of Appomattox, Buck ham, Prince Edward, Charlotte, Halifax, most of Campbell, and the City of South Boston, would want to be without an effective voice in Richmond for the next four years."

"The whole purpose of representative government is to have someone who can speak for the people he represents. We would be without a spokesman if an independent is elected. We would have no voice in the councils where vital decision are made. We would be like stepchildren at a family reunion."

"If you desire to have effective representation; if you desire to have an effective voice, one that will be heard when matters of importance come before the Senate of Virginia, then you will vote for and elect the Honorable Howard Anderson, a dedicated public servant, one who does not have an ax to grind, and one who has made a modest living all of his life. He is not a rich man and not one who is able to buy his way but one who is running on his merit and record of service to the people. I call on all those who believe in fiscal responsibility, who believe in good government, who believe the people should support the government and not the government the people, to vote on November 2nd and cast their vote for the Honorable Howard Anderson who is honest, honorable, experienced and dedicated to serve the best interest of all of the people of Virginia and not just pressure groups who are
